TIP OF THE MONTH

HEAD GOLF PROFESSIONAL

Finding the Clubface in the Golf Swing

The clubface controls approximately 80-90% of the ball's starting direction, making clubface awareness one of the most important skills to develop. Throughout the swing, focus on knowing where the clubface is rather than simply trying to swing harder. Use slow-motion practice swings and stop at key positions—the takeaway, halfway back, the top of the swing, halfway down, and impact TO check the clubface position. As you improve your awareness and control of the clubface, you'll hit more consistent shots, start the ball on your intended line more often, and become a more reliable ball striker.
